Letters To The Editor

Rebuttal

Dear Ms. Wood,

This is in answer to your April 16th letter printed in the Inkwell. Your feeble attempt at sarcasm and "more educated-holier-than-thou" attitude is truly pathetic. I addressed a specific issue in my letter to the editor, you managed to avoid it nicely.

The bookstore is making false claims when it says it buys back all current editions of books being used at A.S.C. or any other college. It does not. The students are complaining but nothing is being done to improve the situation — not even an explanation of why the bookstore won't buy the books.

What happens when a student complains publicly? A bookstore official (no doubt their public relations chairman) tries, unsuccessfully, to humiliate the student with pithy observations on that person's mentality and education. Well, that's one way of avoiding the issue.

Perhaps my letter was incoherent. Rage will do that. (But temper tantrums, Ms. Wood? So melodramatic!) I apologize for my vulgarity — it isn't my usual writing style and it only occurs when I encounter stupidity or incompetence.

I do not apologize for my anger. I am still angry, but there is nothing I can do. It is up to the bookstore officials to change a bad system of book selling and it is their impotence that prevents the system being changed.

I was not surprised to see a reply to my letter, I expected that. But I was surprised at the attack on character that I and another writer received from you. It was childish and sad that you should do so. But I should have known that the real issue would not be addressed, after all apathy is so much easier — it requires no thought.

Confessions Of An SOS Addict

By Curtis Lynch

The smart place for a thrifty (i.e. poor) college student to have been during S.O.S. week was at an S.O.S. function. I myself am living proof that good times and bargains are to be found working in dusty campus corners.

Wednesday I found myself and my salad surrounded by crazy people in the cafeteria. Jim Winters was waving all sorts of items around and men and women alike were waving back. While getting the attention of a friend I found myself in a savage auction-type battle for a set of elephant paws (since I already had a set, I conceded to the other party). Then, while checking under my arm for a rip in my shirt (I'll get you for that!), I came within an inch of buying a 10-week pass to the Cesspool Disease Emporium, Inc. Those auctions can be dangerous.

Well, after the kegs of beer and half-gallons of wine were gone, I lost interest and wandered into the book sale where I picked up a French version of John Lennon's "In his own Write" for 75 cents. Any self-respecting Beatles fan would have snatched that sucker up immediately.

And then on Thursday I sampled the "Just Desserts" contest quite liberally. Those mountains of delicious calories kept my sugar level peaked out until the wee hours of the morning.

For my part, I had a good time during S.O.S. week and I hope it was a big success. The only thing is . . . I KNOW that the ticket stub I lost would have been the winner of that TV set . . .

Coupon Creepee Crawlers Criticized

It was tempting I'll admit. But I really didn't think the students of ASC were that tacky. Pie on me for being so naive. I'm referring to the March 12 issue which contained an ad for any Friday night's free admission to Stonehenge. Many people took a large stack of papers, ripped out the ad, and replaced the papers in the newsstands.

This was really rotten behavior for college students. Actually, this was really rotten behavior for a kindergarten student. The least you could have done was cover your books by throwing away the rest of the paper (and, at the same time, give the Inkwell's ego a boost by letting us think you were actually reading the paper).

Well now I've had my belated say. I hope all of you ad-snatchers have a good time when you use the coupons. Beware: the coupons have a by-product. Over-indulgence leads to the proverbial beer gut, hangover, and sometimes a fender-bender in the cramped parking lot. Be nice to the Inkwell Staff. There are about 500 copies of that issue left. And only we know where they are.

Abney Announces Army's Arrival

The troops have landed as the Army R.O.T.C. joins the ranks here at A.S.C. The Army set up 41 new R.O.T.C. programs for the academic year 1980-81, and Armstrong was among the colleges selected to serve as extensions to the University of Ga.'s R.O.T.C. program.

Maj. Howard "Sonny" Abney who came down from the University of Ga. in early April is "tremendously impressed with the response I have received from both the administration & the students."

Maj. Abney explained his reasons for coming to ASC in early April when the program does not officially begin until September 1980. "We hope to generate student interest in the Army ROTC program and to allow those students who are sophomores an opportunity to participate in the program by attending Basic Camp this summer." Abney added that several individuals have already expressed a desire to attend camp.

Abney explained that the Army R.O.T.C. program is divided into two parts: the Basic and the Advanced courses. The Basic courses are open to any student in the college. Course work is a combination of military skills and subjects which are of general interest in nature such as map reading. Abney emphasized that there is no military obligation involved in taking any of the basic courses and that any student can drop or add these courses during the quarter. Grading for these courses follows the usual procedure used on the A.S.C. campus.

If a student successfully completes the basic courses and wishes to continue into the advance courses then the student enters a contractual agreement with the United States Army.

In agreeing to serve for a period of time either on active duty or reserve in the National Guard, the Army will pay the student $100 a month stipend up to $2000.00. Also part of the advanced course is the summer camp experience where the students receive an opportunity to observe and operate many different kinds of army weapons and other equipment. For the six week camp the student receives $500 plus travel expenses to and from Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Maj. Abney de-emphasized the monetary benefits of the R.O.T.C. program stating that it has been his experience that the R.O.T.C. program is a very worthwhile experience for its participants. "The major result of the program," Abney said, "is a commitment to serve one's country and the money is merely a part of this commitment."

In addition to these allowances, the Army R.O.T.C. has three, two, and one year scholarships awarded to outstanding military experience. These scholarships pay tuition, books, plus $100.00 a month.

Maj. Abney invisions the program as extremely flexible and added, "there are so many options that almost anyone can fit into the program."

Maj. Abney said that the program will be open throughout the summer and the major will spend his time recruiting and advertising. He also added that there is a possibility of one course being taught this summer.

Maj. Abney summarized the Army R.O.T.C.'s goal by saying, "We know the Army isn't for everyone yet we're looking for a commitment from a few dedicated men and women."

Attention Sophomores

Now There Is A New Opportunity At Armstrong State College.

Army ROTC is now on campus. If you have two years of college remaining you can enroll in the two-year program. Your training will start this summer at the six week Army ROTC summer camp. During the six weeks you will earn $450 plus travel expenses. Lodging and meals are provided. You also have the opportunity to compete for 2 year full-tuition college scholarships. The completion of the summer camp qualifies you to enroll in the Advanced Military Science program. As an Advanced Course student you will be paid $100 per month for ten months a year or $1000 a year for your Junior and Senior years. But, more important, you'll be on your way to earning a commission in today's Army... which includes the Army Reserve and Army National Guard... while you're earning your college degree. Sound interesting? Get the facts. Contact Major Howard Abney in Room 208, Memorial College Center or call 927-5206.

Sigma Kappa

By Stephanie Carey Bridges

The Epsilon Sigma Chapter of Sigma Kappa sorority is proud to announce the engagement of Sister Becky Wright to Big Brother Brian Corbett. They have set December 13, 1980 as the date and we wish them both the best of luck.

Sigma Kappa held a roller skating rush party, and despite all the falls and bruises, a good time was had by all.

We would like to thank the brothers of Phi Kappa Theta for such a good time at the social held at their house on April 19. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

All of the sisters are busy making plans for our annual awards banquet. Suspense is building up as to who will win the awards this year.

Phi Mu

By Karen Meinert

With the arrival of spring, Phi Mu has held several rush parties. On Wednesday, April 23rd, we had a Salad Party. Many new faces were seen and everyone had a wonderful time.

While our advisor, Mrs.

Buck, and her husband Dean Buck, were supervising Night in Old Savannah, Phi Mu was busy running around delivering supplies to every booth. It would not be at all out of line to call us gofers . . . everyone kept telling us to go for this and go for that!

Kappa Omicron Chapter received a visit from Claudia Kruse, our Chapter Consultant from our National Office. Although she only stayed three days, we enjoyed her visit and trust she was pleased with our chapter.

Two Phi Mu's and 2 Alpha Gams attended the Southeastern Panhellenic Conference in Tallahassee, Florida. We all learned a great deal and had a good time.

Sigma Nu

The brothers, pledges, and little sisters send greetings to all faculty members, fellow Greeks, and the entire student body. On April sixth new officers were elected for the 1980-81 academic year. They are: James Sasser, commander, Jack Fowler Tr. Lieutenant commander, William Szatmark, recorder, and Eric Olssen Tr, Treasurer. We would like to also congratulate Brother William F. Ryals on his election to Interfraternity Council President. The men and women of Sigma Nu are currently working on a strong rush program this spring. Sigma Nu's first Formal smoker resulted in two men dedicating themselves to Sigma Nu. The new pledges are George Whittington and Keith Holton. We would like to congratulate Jimmy Sasser on his birthday, April the twenty second. Lastly we would like to extend an invitation to the student body to attend our 3rd smoker, May 7 8 p.m. in the Faculty dining room.

Panhellenic Council

The Armstrong State College Panhellenic Association met April 14, 1980, at 6:00 p.m. for a covered dish supper at which the 1980-81 officers were installed. The Panhellenic Association is composed of all members of the three National Panhellenic Conference sororities active at Armstrong. Officers of the Association are delegates elected to the Panhellenic Council by their respective chapters; they serve by rotation in the order of the dates their chapters were established at Armstrong.

Officers installed were:
Lynda Broussard—President

Susan Cole — Vice President/Treasurer

Mary Gene Murphy — Secretary

The members of Phi Mux, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Sigma Kappa closed the program by demonstrating their enthusiasm and support for the Greeks at Armstrong with spirited entertainment.

Notable Quotables

In honor of the S.G.A. elections, the Inkwell has some notable quotes concerning politics. Good luck, candidates!

There cannot be a crisis next week. My schedule is already full.

-Henry Kissinger

Washington appears to be filled with two kinds of politicians - those trying to get an investigation started, and those trying to get one stopped.

-Earl Wilson

I know you will vote for me until I die. And even after I'm dead I think some of you will write my name in.

What are your feelings about the 16¼% tuition hike and will this increase have any effect on your college education?

Debbie Frankenthaler, 21, History Major

"I'm graduating this quarter, so the price hike won't have much effect on my education but it will influence my fiancée who will be attending medical college in the fall. With a 40% tuition hike in medical college it's going to be hard for us. Twenty-five dollars a quarter won't stop a student from getting an education if he really wants to be educated but the 40% tuition hike makes an education much more difficult..."

Maureen O'Brien, 20, Elementary Education Major

"I feel that like anything, the cost of an education is getting higher. I can understand why the tuition had to be raised. However, I do not feel the raise is large enough to really effect my education — maybe I'll just have to drink soup instead of eating salads..."

Jody Skinner, 22, No major

"I believe the administration should cancel the athletic fee if they have to get more money from somewhere and not make every student pay for equipment, etc. that only a small minority of students take advantage of using. This would still allow the college to raise the tuition and still offset a huge increase."

Keith Hughes, 21, Major undecided

"I can understand the price increase and it won't affect my education. I really feel for those people however, who are attending Armstrong from out of state. They're the ones this tuition hike is really killing. I think some of that money should be invested into building on-campus housing to combat the cost of outside essentials which are far worse than the price of A.S.C.'s tuition."

Judy Richburg, 17, Business Major

"I don't see where the price hike is sufficient enough to have any effect on my education — Perhaps in the future, but right now the increase does not pose any big problem insofar as getting an education."

Laura Goldwire, 18, Biology

"It's bound to have some effect because many students have a number of other expenses to cope with on a limited income. Getting an education may take longer, because students will be having to earn more money thus cutting down on the number of hours that they can attend school."

Imagination and ingenuity went into the concept and creation of a charming science-fiction fantasy. The action-filled tale tells about the kidnapping of Santa from his North Pole workshop by Martians who want his jolly spirit to pervade Mars and enliven their children, who are depressed over the lack of fun in their lives! Horror Of Party Beach

This is one of the most interesting beach party monster movies. Atomic waste is the culprit this time; as it decays at the bottom of the ocean, the remains of dead creatures, both marine and man, are transformed into blood-sucking monsters who rise from the depths to do the unwary celebrants on the beach. (1964) Director: Del Tenney.

The film stars Dwayne Hickman and Frankie Avalon as a pair of super secret agents, and Vincent Price as a mad scientist, complete with a hunchbacked assistant, who plots to conquer the world by means of a score of girl-robots cranked out by a huge machine. This is the slickest and best of AIP's Beach Party spin-offs. (1965) Director: Norman Taurog.

Who will survive?

Not A Typical College Student

Debra McCorkle Sparkman is a nineteen year old junior here at Armstrong State College. She is a History major with a minor in Russian studies. Sounds like a typical student, right? Wrong!

Debra is presently enrolled in 20 hours of classes. She spends her free time(?) with her husband, Jack Sparkman, who works as a chemical operator in a laboratory. Debra's name has appeared on the Dean's list several times and she is a member of Phi Alpha Theta (History Honor Society).

Debra plays piano for a kindergarten. She attends Faith Fellowship Church, which is an nondenominational church.

ch. Debra says, "When I was thirteen I was at a rock concert and was handed a tract. I stuck it in my pocket and forgot it. Three months later, I was really down and I found the tract. It had a telephone number on it and I called it. I began to go to church and soon after I accepted Christ into my life." On weekends, Debra and her husband go on River Street and talk to people. "Not hassling people, just giving them something to think about. We ask people why they're there and they usually say that there's nothing to do in Savannah on weekends but get drunk."

Debra sees the need for an evangelical ministry on the college campus. She says,

Debra McCorkle Sparkman

"Students hear things they've never heard before and it boggles their minds. They don't know what to believe. They take philosophy and English and don't know how to handle it (those ideas conflicting with their religions reliefs). Professors can be very persuasive. Students usually jump on the first thing they hear. It's also hard for students to talk to their parents about it. An evangelical ministry would help these students."

It is Debra's hope that a college education will allow her to gain credibility for her beliefs and get people to listen to her. "I can talk one-on-one now," she says. Debra and her husband sometimes allow people who need help to live with them till they get on their feet. "We've only had four or five people, and recently a girl had her baby born in our house." Debra is a vegetarian whose hobby is growing bean sprouts. "I'm too busy for any other hobbies," she says.

Despite her lack of time, Debra has boundless enthusiasm.

Just for laughs ... (Below is part of the faculty meeting's minutes for April.)

The president said that there has been discussion on campus concerning the Xerox in Gamble Hall and its use to get free copies. This matter was investigated by the president. He checked with Xerox management and found it was aware that the machine could be "tricked" and that it was possible the salesman had shown how. However, the company does not approve of this procedure (which apparently has been done on this particular model Xerox throughout the city). Xerox management subsequently altered the machine so that this technique could not be employed, but users then developed a new technique to "trick" the machine and get free copies. The problem has been corrected. The president has forbidden such activities in the future. He noted that he was appalled that this occurred at this institution.

Special Recruiting date for night students and Veterans with Williams, Faircloth and Associates. Full and Part-time Insurance Sales positions available. Will be on campus May 7, 1980 from 5-9 p.m.; to sign up for an interview please call or come by the Placement Office, Room 5 of the Administration Building.

Public Experience "A Froth At The Mouth"

By Charles Griffin
National News Bureau . .

The smell is in the air. Blood leads to blood. Old soldiers chew their bits and kick at their stable doors. Newshawks gather around the fresh kills like the brethren of vultures that they are.

Incident follows incident and the public finds that each new event raises a froth at the mouth and a fever to do something — anything — about the world situation.

Congress moves slowly toward a first step to a new draft, but presidential politics and the jackals of the global jungle feed on and enlarge each bloody event until one explodes.

The explosion is coming. It may not be Iran or Afghanistan. It could be in South America or in Israel or in Europe. Something is building — lurching darkly this way. The pressure is too great for it to be otherwise. Some half-assed terrorist or politician will overdo it and the world will stumble into war.

If war comes, this life of ours will cease to exist. Our only hope is that the war may be limited in scope — contained in the spark area. If it is, then we might win — wigh a hell of a lot of luck. But we are far more likely to lose. Whatever happens in a limited war, at least we will survive as a society and be able to rebuild and, perhaps, change our ways.

Unlimited war means only destruction — the end of civilization as we know it.

Either way, the big party is over for us. The frills will be gone. There is no room in a soldier's backpack for a silk pillow.

War requires gas rationing, food rationing, and personal sacrifice. We have never been so short of national shipping resources. Our merchant marine is now Liberian or Panamanian. The true owners may be American, but they are unlikely to risk their ships too often if supply lanes to America are cut by Soviet submarines.

Things we have taken for granted will be in short supply. Coffee, tea, and bananas are not native to the U.S. I don't even want to think about strategic materials produced overseas.

America will have to mobilize. The population will have to accept discipline, if we are to survive as a nation. Conscription will be a fact. Men and women will be in uniform if they are of age and capable. They will drill and train to defend or attack our enemies. They will not easily be able to question or ponder the why of an order. When the captain of the hundreds says "go," they will go. And by the pointing of a finger, men and women will die. Not in defense of liberty, for our liberties will be gone. Not in defense of our way of life, for our way of life will have changed forevermore. They will die to maintain the government and to overcome the foe.

And the outcome is in doubt.

We face an enemy whose whole population is prepared and trained for war, whose major point of pride in World War II was that they survived everything the Germans could do, held their ground, then came back to overwhelm them. Moscow subways are ornate and practical bomb shelters. They are deep enough to withstand direct overhead hits — nuclear hits. Except for a few well-protected cities, the rest of their people and industries are widely dispersed.

The Soviet government may have problems with minority populations and with dissidents, but it has no qualms about putting down either. We could exploit that, but our foreign policy is too weak to allow us to take advantage of the situation.

The Soviet citizen is a hard worker who knows little of personal luxury. He walks more and performs more physical labor than the average American. He makes a good soldier.

During World War II most Americans entering the military had some prior experience with hardships. Today that is not true. The Russian is now hardier, more willing to obey orders, more patriotic, and better trained and outfitted than his American counterpart.

He is less independent, and his leaders are less flexible, since Soviet strategy is more single-minded than anything we have. But the Soviet soldier is brave and willing to try, the officer wastes little time worrying about his orders, and his superior's strategy is to win.

When there is nothing left to decide, there is little time for indecision.

Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "The dice of God are always loaded." If he didn't say it, someone else equally wise did. We have always had the dice on our side. But Vietnam was a warning. Our roll can't last forever. It is high time we helped load the dice.

Skip ideologies and make military alliances where we can. Bring our old allies into line or neutralize them. Sow dissension in the Soviet backyard. Tighten our belts and prepare for survival.

He who survives the best will be the victor. He may stand in triumph over a pile of shit, but he will have won if he is able to stand.

"Little 'ol Band From Texas" Has Great Sound

By Curtis Lynch

After a long break from recording and touring, "that little 'ol band from Texas" has returned to what they do best — playing live. ZZ Top live is like hearing a herd of mad-dened elephants stomp through your head, and loving every minute of it. Their distinctive sound of Texas boogie-blooz is still there, but thicker.

Ron Gedaire, the warm-up band, takes their name from Ron Gedaire (obviously), ex-White Witch. The band was full of energy, but suffered from a slightly stiff or rehearsed stage presence. Gedaire's band, cast in the Van Halen mold, has a new album on Polydor Records called "Breakin' All the Rules." I have a feeling this band is better than the performance witnessed. Also on the bill was Roadmaster, a band on Mercury Records. They gave a high-spirited performance, but Gedaire seemed to exude more energy. And besides, who wants to face a crowd screaming "ZZ TOP! ZZ TOP!"

ZZ Top opened up with their new single, Elmore

James' "I Thank You." As tight as ever, they ran through their pre-"Deguello" hits — "Precious and Grace," "La Grange" (and of course, "Tush.") with expertise as well as feeling.

But it was the songs from their Warner Bros. LP "Deguello" that really demonstrated the direction ZZ Top is headed. Their originals "She Loves My Automobile" and "Hi-Fi Mama" were given an added dimension because of a taped track of the Lone Wolf Horns (actually Beard, Gibbons, and Hill) playing saxes. A film of Top was synched into the music and shown above Beard's drum kit. This extra visual edge was very effective. Nobody wanted to see these Texans leave, and apparently they didn't want to. "Manic Mechanic" and the classic encore "Beer Drinkers and Hell-Raisers" followed many satisfied concert goers out into the Savannah night. ZZ Top's sound for the eighties is not a departure from their old sound, but rather a new direction built on the time honored traditions of Texas-style high energy 'BLOOZ.

What has less power than the average lawnmower, gets more miles per gallon than some large pick-up trucks get per tankful and will pay for itself in gas savings alone within twenty-four months?

The moped, of course. The freshest face on the transportation scene, the moped has already been embraced by twenty-five million Western Europeans as the answer to their astronomical gasoline prices — many of them A.S.C. students.

And, by the end of the year, more than one million mopeds will be operating on American roads, a twenty-fold increase over five years. And that's even better than the increase in gold bullion!

The logic behind the moped's success is easily understood:

—50% of all car trips are made by one passenger.

—Four out of five car trips are less than ten miles.

—The moped has an average yearly consumption rate of less than 33 gallons of regular gas if it averages 12 miles per day. The same distance traveled by a U.S. car requires 274 gallons of unleaded fuel. The annual difference these days comes to at least $300 and is going up.

—The moped average 135-miles to the gallon and some are capable of 175 miles per gallon.

—A middle-priced moped will pay for itself within a two-year period, based upon a gasoline price of 1.26/gallon. The comparative costs of registrations, insurance, repairs and depreciation aren't even included in the calculation.

While the rumors fly thick and fast in Washington about gas taxes, gas rationing, and other measures that promise to raise the price out of sight, the moped seems headed for a grand and glorious future. Use of the moped here in America differs greatly from European use. Currently, seven out of ten U.S. mopeds are owned in two-car households, while in Europe the moped serves many millions as a primary form of transportation. Europe's model behavior regarding moped use, bicycle use, and traffic safety and control is expected to be the standard for planning United States' programs during the 80's, according to experts.

True mopeds are, by definition, equipped with automatic transmissions and pedals, to help the little machines up steep inclines.

Federal regulations require an array of reflectors, headlights, taillamps, and include other safety standards for construction. Most states have recognized the benign nature of the moped, and require no special moped permit. A car driver's license signifying knowledge of the rules of the road will do in most places. And it's hard to get speeding tickets on a moped, mainly because the maximum capability of the moped engine and the speed limit are almost always the same.

As the family car sits in the garage for longer and longer periods of time, the moped will supplement the passenger automobile for the short hops to town, to the grocery store, to work and of course to school and across campus. For Americans trapped in fossil fuel pincers, the moped is a timely answer to a critical problem. As a matter of fact, the Moped Association of America estimates that mopeds this year will account for savings of 240 million gallons of gas in replaceable auto mileage.

That makes the moped patriotic, all right. But don't tell it to your moped. It thinks you're riding it because it's fun.

The Rob Crosby Group will be performing here at ASC on the Patio, 11:30 to 12:30, on May 1.

The group has been praised for its versatility, blend of styles, and crowd-pleasing abilities. Rob Crosby, leader, writes all of the original material for the band. The group consists of Rob Crosby (songwriter, lead vocal, acoustic guitar, & piano), Margie McCrory (vocal), Steve White (piano, vocal), Bobby Fowler (sax, flute, vocal), Tommy (T-Bird) Toglio (drums), Tim McKeever (percussion) and when Rob Crosby met Steve White met in 1974 at an out-Cary Taylor (bass guitar, vocal).

The Band organized in 1974 door concert. Crosby was, along with Tim McKeever, a member of a band that focused on original music. Crosby met Margie McCroney that same year and the band formed adding Bobby Fowler, Tommy Toglio, and Cary Taylor the following year.

Crosby summarized his work in the band by saying, "This band is the best musical experience I've ever been a part of. I'm lucky to be able to work with such outstandingly talented people. I don't know what "making it" is; there are so many levels of success. But if it has something to do with finding a unique blend of talented musicians, and a true line of communication to the audience we play for, then I have found my place."
